

The HORNET BUZZ

ALL I WANT FOR CHRISTMAS IS...

By Shaelyn Bautista '18

The holidays are quickly approaching so it's time to start thinking about what you want for Christmas. This year during black Friday some of the most purchased items were Apple Air Pods, Sony Playstation VR, and Nintendo Switch. If you're looking for gift ideas you could look online. I always look on pinterest to find creative gift baskets to give to my family and friends.

I asked students around the school what they're asking for, for Christmas. Terron Grant wants money for Christmas so he can pick out a new pair of shoes. Sophomore Ethan York is asking for an Apple Watch. MaCayla Bisher wants a new laptop for her college class next semester. Junior Ryan Wood is hoping for some new clothes and video games to be under his tree Christmas morning.

As you can see there are a variety of things that people want for Christmas. Popular items that people are asking for are new electronics and new clothes. Electronics and clothing styles are always changing and everybody wants to stay updated on the newest and latest trends. Remember that the holiday season isn't all about presents, it's about giving and being around the people that you love. Have a happy and safe holidays!

CHRISTMAS VACATION DESTINATIONS

By Emma Hammel '18

Winter break! The best time of all for most students. Winter vacation means visiting family, getting a break from school, and enjoying the holidays. There seems to be about a half and half split between people that travel during winter break, and those who just stay home for the two weeks. Traveling during winter break can be stressful, depending on your destination. I interviewed Katy Kempa, who plans to leave Hillsdale this year.

Katy plans to go to New York for the winter holiday. Traveling to New York can be a little tedious, especially when this is the highest travel time of the year. USA Today ranked Christmas time as the 3rd busiest days of travel due to everyone trying to be with their family for the holiday. Katy Kempa travels to New York every year to visit her family, but doesn't take a plane; she drives 8 hours and hopes the traffic isn't too heavy. She visits her family in New York nearly every year around Christmas time, so Katy is used to the traffic and long car ride.

Whether you are staying home or traveling across the country this winter break, be sure to make the most of all your time off. This year Hillsdale High School chose to hold exams the week before winter break rather than when the students come back after it. This will most certainly prove to increase exam scores while the material is still fresh in the students' minds. Although exam week may be stressful, at least you have your nice two week vacation to look forward to! Happy Holidays Hillsdale High!

COLLAGE CONCERT- WHO WILL HAVE THE SPOTLIGHT?

By Amber Smith '18

Christmas collage concerts are a great way for schools and communities to get into the Christmas spirit. Hillsdale High School will be putting on a performance for everyone to enjoy on the 20th of December. The collage concert will consist of multiple band, orchestra and chorale performances.

Amber Butters '19, Nathaniel Miller '21, and Katie Dietz '18 will all present a solo performance for all to see. Amber Butters and Nathaniel Miller will have a chorale performance and Katie Dietz '18 will be performing by herself for the band. The concert choir will be performing beautiful acapellas as well. One of the solo performances will be performed by the orchestras Kayleah Anderson '18. Interview with Kayleah Anderson '18:

Q: Do you get nervous before performing?

A: Oh yeah, definitely, every time.

Q: What will you be performing?

A: The Ludlows by James Horner

Q: How long do you practice for on average daily?

A: About 1 hour and a half to 2 hours.

Q: How long have you played the violin for?

A: I've played for 7 years.

BREAK PEER PRESSURE

By Terrontino Grant

Have you heard of peer pressure? If you have not, it is a very real thing that takes teenagers and ever younger kids down the wrong path. If you ask me, peer pressure is a lack of respect. Your friend who you're close to, who knows you don't like to party or want to, makes you feel like you have to do this to be cool or to fit in and be the best guy/girl ever. If it's not in your best interest don't do it.

People can have their lives ruined by someone just making them feel guilty for not doing it. You have so much potential, that you know you have then don't stoop down to their level and just keep doing what you do best whatever that thing may be. Do not disappoint your parents or your peers, your coaches or grandparents just because someone doesn't accept your views.

If you don't play sports and you have all this time on your hands to party and have people influence you, build hobbies for yourself. My advice? Try not to be friends with people who might slow you down or don't allow you to reach your full potential by getting you to destroy your body. Also, get in sports, especially in high school, let the coaches touch your heart and guide you in the right direction, because all it takes is one time, one time and it can be all swept away from you.

SENIORS FEELING THE COLLEGE HEAT

By Katy Kempa '18

The pressure is on for the seniors around this time of year. The one question they've heard all their lives, where are you going to college, is now at the decision point. The seniors have had a few months to go on college visits, apply to colleges, apply for FAFSA, and start on scholarships. October was college application month, which this year's seniors all participated in. On average, the number of colleges a senior applies to is about 4-8.

I interviewed Emma Hammel on her college rush. I asked, "What is your top choice school and why?" She responded, "Michigan Tech because it has a lot of hands-on learning." I then asked, "Does the distance away from your home affect your decision on a college to attend?" She said, "My top college is nine hours north, so I'm on the fence about whether the education is worth the distance."

The seniors are now in the stage of receiving letters from colleges they applied to, determining if they were accepted or denied. For some seniors they have been accepted to their top choice school already and are looking ahead to the scholarships available. The scholarships are typically essays about how the student has grown as a person revolving around that specific topic. Most students will not know whether they have won the scholarship until late May to early June. We wish all the seniors good luck on the rest of their college decision making.

LEARNING CAN BE FUN!

By Hanna Korn '18

Chip Patterson is a science teacher at Hillsdale High School. He teaches Botany, Zoology, Science & Engineering, and AP Environmental Science. His teaching method involves experiments, lab, and many different projects. Chip's favorite thing about teaching is getting the kids involved in the lesson and have them get excited about learning about the environment. His favorite project to teach is in Botany and Zoology. The students collect water samples from Hornet Creek and observe the samples under different levels of magnification through the microscopes. He loves finding and observing all the different kinds of aquatic vertebra. It's fascinating to see all the life that is in a few drops of water.

Chip uses experiments and labs while teaching because real life application helps reinforce the learning process. Hands on interaction sparks the interest in learning and gets the students more involved. His passion for teaching is fueled by seeing young people pursue science, getting involved, and helping make the environment a better place for plants, animals, and people. Chip works in the workshop with the Science & Engineering class building bridges, boats, airplanes, and many other projects. He makes the class fun by having competitions with the finished projects for durability, design, etc.

Chip is also a mentor of Envirothon Club. Chip says that the two groups of individuals he mentors are eager and excited about being a part of helping to improve the environment. Their group project this year was to help preserve water and lower the number of non-reusable plastic water bottles. They installed water bottle filling stations at the water fountains in the school and in the gym and distributed reusable water bottles to every high school student. The Envirothon Club has received a $500 grant to place blocks and garden “decor” to the pollination gardens in the courtyards and Hornet Creek. This will be their next project to improve the high school and the environment. Chip hopes to win states this year and make it to nationals in Idaho.

ADVANCED PLACEMENT CLASSES

By Chloe Page ‘18

Advanced placement classes have become very popular among students this year. They give students the opportunity to further their education in a subject by taking a college course but staying on campus with teachers that they are familiar with. Hillsdale High School offers a wide variety of AP Courses. Every year they offer AP Calculus and AP Literature. There are also other AP classes available every other year AP Chemistry, AP US History, and AP Environmental Science. AP Environmental Science was offered this year.

I interviewed Julissa Torres who’s in AP Environmental Science.

What are you learning about right now?

Food production and the environment.

What do you like about APES?

I can learn about the environment more by doing different labs.

Do you think it will benefit you in the future?

Yes, because it tells about what we can do to make the Earth better.

Many seniors and juniors are involved in AP classes. They’re a good way to get college credit while staying on campus. They also are the best classes to prepare students for real college courses and shows us how they can be challenging at times. Although they can be hard, if you are advanced in a certain subject, there’s an advanced class for you to take once you finish all your core classes in the subject. I think taking an AP class is a good idea for all students who are college bound because it’s so preparing and it can get you college credit if you do well enough in the class.

PROCRASTINATION- THE HIGH SCHOOL EPIDEMIC

By Emily Pachoud ‘18

Procrastination is a very common, widespread habit in high schoolers. Of course, it is often an issue in college students as well, but it is easier to get away with in high school. If you ask a random high schooler, chances are, they have had a problem with procrastinating at some point, or still do. High school students have sports, clubs, and other activities that take up a lot of time, and in their free time, they want to hang out with friends and socialize, rather than doing homework. Therefore, they end up having to do all their homework at the last minute. I had the opportunity to interview a couple students about their procrastination habits.

Senior Abby Pitts and Junior Hunter Sharp both admitted to falling victim to procrastination. They both attributed it to a lack of motivation. Abby also said it can be due to “thinking you have more time than you actually do.” Hunter agreed that it can be more stressful to put her work off until the last minute; however, she added, “It’s not good, but when I’m under pressure I have more motivation to do it.” To combat procrastination, each student offered some tips. Abby said, “I turn off my phone and uninstall my netflix app.” Hunter said she often tries to make a plan which she puts in her calendar and sets reminders on her phone for. Procrastination is an issue in all ages, but it is especially extreme and “contagious” in high schoolers. Hunter states, “When I was younger I wouldn’t [procrastinate], but with age it got to me.”

I also took a sample survey in Mr. Lemerand’s Stats&Probability class and then in Mrs. Youngman’s pre-algebra class to see their procrastination habits. I asked who frequently or always procrastinates, who once in awhile procrastinates, and who rarely or never procrastinates. The results are shown below.

PASS, DRIBBLE, SWISH - NEW COACH

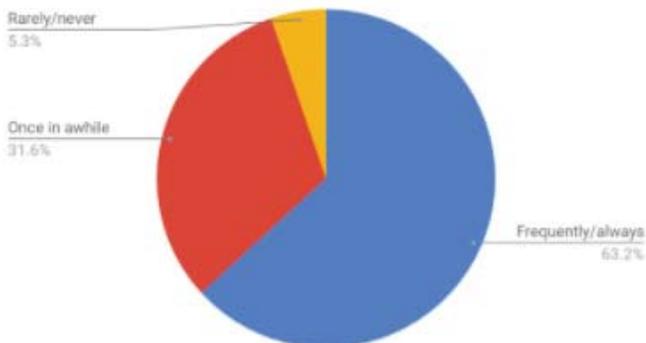

By Katelynn Britton ‘20

Introducing the new girls basketball Coach Ken Keasal. We welcome him back to the hornet team. He was recognized in the past when coaching at Hillsdale Community Schools girls basketball, boys basketball, and football.

Coach Keasal was inspired by his junior high basketball coach to become the basketball coach he has become today. He wanted to become a basketball coach because he felt and saw a need about 25 years ago. His community helped him out and he wanted to give back to his community for what they done for him. Coach Keasal has been coaching a great number of years, in fact 27 years!

He attended college at Jackson Community College, and he has two wonderful children his oldest son is Shawn he is 31, then his daughter Tiffany is 28. Ken Keasal has been happily married for 37 years to his amazing wife.

Mr. Lemerand’s Stats&Prob Class Procrastination Habits

In his spare time he likes to get outside and be in nature and enjoy the outdoors. He likes to hunt, fish, go boating, and do construction on the weekends. He like coaching basketball so much because he loves to see the difference he makes in each young person's life. How he makes a impact in that person's life and how it changes that person and how it makes him feel. That is why he likes coaching young students so he can make a difference in that person's life.

HOW ATHLETES APPROACH THE FINAL GAME OF THE HIGH SCHOOL CAREER

By Collin Brown '18

Everything comes to an end at one point in time whether it's life, school, anything really, but memories made while playing high school sports will last for a lifetime. In high school there are many things to participate in whether it is clubs, sports etc. Playing your last game ever in high school is a hard thing to do whether you're going on to play that sport in college or not.

Senior Bryce Drews has been a member of the Hornet Varsity Basketball team for all four years of his high school career. Bryce is also on track to be a member of the one thousand points club and who also has a good chance to continue his basketball career at the next level. When asking him, "How he will feel about playing his last basketball game of his career," he said, "I don't really think about it because I just go out there and play every game so it's not my last game of my career, When it is at the end of the day, I'm expecting a trophy in my hands of sort because of all the work I've put into becoming the best player I can be. As far as not being able to play with the teams I've played on before and in the gym I once grew to be the player I am today is going to be hard but when it comes I'll be ready for it."

I also asked Senior Scott Hasen, "How he was going to approach the final game of his high school career and he said, "I'm going to approach it like any other game of my career," calm and collective and try to end on a good note where I can be satisfied with how my career was." I also asked him, "What he thinks about not playing anymore," and he said, "I'm really gonna miss it that's no question, I'm gonna miss my team my coaches, and just not being a part of it anymore."

Being a senior in high school is fun in all, but a lot of things come to an end. It's hard when anything has to come to an end, but high school sports is quite hard to leave behind. Most people don't go on to play at the next level so that's the end of their career. The way to approach it is just to play to your best ability and leave everything out on the field. At the end of the day you should be happy with what how you performed.

POLAR BEAR - Club SPORT

By Sam Nash' 18

Hillsdale High School has many different varsity sports and clubs to participate in throughout the school year. One of those clubs is called Polar Bear which is a winter track club. The head coach of the Track and Field team at Hillsdale runs the club and looks forward to it every year. The team travels around the state to run in meets at college indoor facilities. The team is not only for track athletes though anyone wanting to get in shape is welcome to be a part of this club.

Polar Bear has its practice outside even in the snow. The team has to be ready for ice, wind, rain, and snow. Clay is impressed with the turn out he has this year and is excited for the season. The team grows in numbers every year and has always been successful.

Clay loves working with the team and helping them reach their goals. "If it is getting in shape or trying to win a state championship I try to work with the kids and help them reach their goal". The team has had a lot of success over the years and clay hopes to continue that tradition. "I can see the work the kids put in translates into their other sports." Clay is always trying to grow this club and wants everyone to feel welcome to come and enjoy their time with the team.

ATHLETIC TRAINERS

By Bryce Drews '18

Athletic Training is a profession that many younger people are interested in pursuing. Being an athletic trainer, you will be in on all of the action during sports games. A large percent of millennials want to be an athletic trainer for their favorite sports teams they have grown up watching. It takes quite a bit of schooling in order to be qualified for a full time position.

Here at Hillsdale High School, we have had three trainers in the past 4 years. Four years ago, we had "Katniss," a part-time trainer at Hillsdale College. For the next two years, our trainer was "Eric," who was also a part-time trainer at Hillsdale College. Eric is now a head trainer at a high school in Ann Arbor. Now, "Paige" is our trainer here at Hillsdale. Paige is from Will Carleton Academy, just down the road.

In order to be an athletic trainer, it will take at least four years of college. All of the schooling can be worth it. Some of the head trainers at practices or colleges can make around $32,000 to $60,000. It all depends on where you work, and how many hours you put in. You will most likely have to start off as a part-time trainer before becoming a head trainer.

HOW HHS ATHLETES ARE INSPIRED

By Ethan York '20

Students are influenced by many things but more specifically an athlete. Athletes must have something that pushes you harder, something that gives you the adrenaline to keep pushing forward. Students at Hillsdale High School are very inspired by professional athletes whether it comes to watching countless videos on them or their classy style and swag on and or off the court/field.

Adian is influenced by many athletes but one in particular is linebacker Christian McCaffrey. "His passion he has for the game makes me want to strive for greatness, including his classy style and mentality on and off the field.", said Aidan.

Ryan Kast. The most impacting and influenced athlete that inspires Ryan is Christian Pulisic. "Christian was on the same path as I am now and it makes me feel like that if he can do it so can I, he makes me believe that anything is possible and continue on your dreams. Another athlete that inspires me is Lionel Messi, he is always in peak condition and his natural ability to adapt the atmosphere is incredible also the love he has for his family and fans is unbelievable." The students at Hillsdale High School are deeply hardwired with inspiration, it's practically in all of our DNA.

STUDENT SECTIONS

By Joe Wilcox '18

It's a true fact that high school is all about the memories. Some of the best memories in all of high school are from the sports and the student sections that are involved in games. Student sections make it more fun for not only the players but also the fans. A student section can only be as good as the people in them!

A student section makes everything about a game better. Everything is more hype, and that helps fuel the home team. The beginning of the student section at Hillsdale began when the reign of Felix started. That's when the team at Hillsdale started winning lots of games every year.

This year at Hillsdale, even more memories will be made. At home games, there will now be a pep band attending the game, making everything louder, and making it a better more hyped atmosphere. With this said, not only are the players excited for the season, but so are the fans.

"EXTREME" AND RECREATIONAL SPORTS

By Nate Erts '19

Skating and other street sports have gone unnoticed in today's media, being overshadowed by bigger sports like football or baseball, but it can take just as much skill to be good at.

Most of the professional skaters can make just as much, if not more than other players who play "More important" Sports. They start when they are young, and sometimes they retire from the sport in their late twenties. To do what they do, they need to be careful, because hurting yourself is very likely. One bad fall and your career could be over.

People who take skating seriously will normally compete in big competitions. The X Games are a huge part of that too, inspiring other people to make big competitions of their own. In short, skateboarding is fun, and it is what you make it. To some it may not seem like a real sport, and that's fine. It's fun to do, easy to learn, and if you fail, you can just get back up and keep trying.

PING PONG CLUB?

By Brandon Torres '18

In Hillsdale High School, there are about 20 clubs. Some of them include sewing, robotics, chess, and the book club. I'd like to add a ping pong club to the list, because I believe ping pong is a fun, great sport, it would keep students active and increase eye-hand coordination. The middle school has ping pong tables that are rarely used, so I think we should take advantage of what the school has and put these tables to great use. A ping pong club would also be a great way to meet new people and make new friends.

I interviewed Hanna Korn to see what her thoughts were on this idea. I asked her what her opinions were on the sport of ping pong and she replied that she thinks ping pong is fun and exciting and is a good way to stay active. I asked her if there was a ping pong club, would she be interested in joining. She said that she would, because everytime she plays at her grandma's house, she always wins and has a great time doing so. For the final question, I asked Hanna if she believed the ping pong club could be a successful club in the high school, Hanna said that she does believe it could be successful because students are always looking for different ways to stay active and have fun and ping pong is a great way to accomplish that.

It is true that starting a club isn't easy. It goes through a tough process and if approved, the club needs to find someone to run it the next year and so on in order for the club to remain. I've spoken to some students about it, and they've stated that they are interested in joining this club. If I can get enough people interested in joining, I believe this club can be established in no time. I haven't figured out all the details like, whether the ping pong club would run during lunch or after school, but for right now, I need support!

S N O W B A L L EXCITEMENT

By: MaCayla Bisher '18

It's that time of the year again, to celebrate the holidays with Hillsdale's famous snowball dance. This semi-formal will be happened on December ninth from eight to eleven. The sophomore class is hosted this winter wonderland dance and the cost of admission was ten dollars per person. Girls were buying their dresses and boys were searching the bottom of their closets for the dress pants they never wear.

In many cases the girls enjoy this night way more than the guys. I interviewed Chloe Page to hear what she was most excited about as this was going to be her last snowball.

Q: Does it make you sad this was your last snowball?

A: I'm sad it was the last snowball but I'm excited for Prom and what's yet to come.

Q: What did your dress look like? Where did you get it from?

A: My dress was blue and velvet. It had an open back as well and I got it from Lulu's an online store.

Q: Where did you going to eat?

A: My friends and I went to Johnny T's it was a nice and fit the occasion well.

For underclassmen this was their first formal dance in high school and was an exciting experience. Snowball is a fun event to get together with friends, go out and have a good time. This gives girls an excuse to dress up and for guys to ask the girl they've liked for a long time out for a night. Events like snowball create memories that you will remember for a long time after high school. The sophomore class hopes you can come out and have a good time.

FUNNY AND EMBARRASSING MOMENTS IN THE CLASSROOM

By Andrew Bail '18

Did you want to know which teacher had something really embarrassing happen to them. Did you know that perfect Upperclassman had a funny mistake they did on a test. Well you're reading the right article then. And if you don't care about this article, well your this far anyways. Get ready for some funny stories.

I got this from Jacob Roe the best trumpet player in the school. "I got a really good score on the Final exam in english 9 in my freshman year but during class the day after they were graded

Mr. English (the previous Counselor) walked in and said." " This kid did a fantastic job on the exam but there is one problem, he spelled his name wrong on the final exam!" Then he looked at me and said how I spelled it. Jacup Rowe like J-a-c-u-p R-o-w-e; I had to make an announcement about an academic success that went horribly wrong."

I got multiple from Mrs. Spencer about doing silly things when she is teaching. Multiple times when she was pacing back and forth she was tripped by the cords on her floor almost falling on students, and spilling her tea everywhere. Another time was she could not pronounce Architecture correctly so she had to pull up google and have it say out loud how to pronounce the word correctly. One time she completely forgot that she only put mascara on one eye and forgot to put mascara on the other eye. These are just some of the funny stories that have happened in our school. Maybe you have an embarrassing story that you won't forget about and maybe you won't you'll have to find out later when it happens.

FRESHMAN FEARS

By McKenzie Firrone '18

Coming into high school is a scary thing to most people. It is a big change from middle school to come into a bigger school with new and older people. Upperclassman in the FMP program try our best to make it a comfortable and easy transition. We are there at freshman orientation to help guide the way to where you have to go. But no matter how much we try to help, the nerves of your first day of high school do not go away.

I interviewed freshman Kyler Bautista on his freshman fears.

Q: Were you nervous the first day of high school? Why?

A: No not really, my older sister is a senior so I knew a lot of people.

Q: What is the biggest difference between middle school and high school?

A: The students are more mature and there are more clubs and sports in the high school.

Q: What was the part you were worried about most?

A: The classes, I was worried they would be hard since I skipped a grade, but they are not.

Going into high school is a nerve racking experience at first but in the end it is not bad at all and is super fun. High school has a lot more to offer than middle school. More clubs and sports to join. Also each grade can mingle and can interact

MEET MR. HASLEM

By Julissa Torres '18

Hillsdale High School welcomed a new spanish teacher for this school year, Mr. Haslem. He is a Hillsdale High School Alumni. Mr. Haslem went to Butler University for his first year of college and then to Spring Arbor University for three years. Before coming to the High School he worked in outdoor education at Kimball Camp and in Battle Creek. He was also a long term sub for Coldwater schools and subbed at Hillsdale schools as well. He subbed for music, history, English, and ESL. Mr. Haslem loves playing the guitar, he has been playing it since middle school.

I asked Mr. Haslem a couple questions about Spanish. The first question I asked was, "What is your favorite part about teaching another language?" He replied with, "I like to see students get it and learn the language. I get to hear students knowing how to say simple sentences, and that is exciting and fun." The second question I asked him was, "What made you want to fill in as the Spanish teacher at Hillsdale High School?" "I got asked if I would be willing to do it, and I like the idea of helping students." The last question was, "Have you found spanish helpful in your own life?" Mr. Haslem replied with, "Yes, anything you know will open up doors in your life. It gave me more opportunities to do things. It is up to you on if you want to go through those doors."

Mr. Haslem really enjoyed his trip to South America. He was in Bolivia for six months. Speaking a little bit of spanish gave him the confidence to go, but after those months he learned a ton and got better at speaking it. Some of the things he saw and did during his time in Bolivia included seeing the pink river dolphins and climbing the mountains in Andes in which he watched the sunrise over 20,000 feet. Mr. Haslem improved his spanish by talking to many of the people there and liked to see what life is like for those that have lived their entire life in Peru.

WHO IS YOUR MODERN DAY HERO AND WHY?

By Virginia Brown '18

Remember writing a story about who your hero was and why they were your hero when you were young? As life progresses, your personality changes, you figure out who you are and your hero may change over time.

Terron Grant (class of 2018), says his modern day heroes are his coaches because, "Little kids get into sports and some of them are headed down the wrong path, and if a coach connects with a kid, it could change their life." Elon Musk is Ryan Wood's (class of 2019) modern day hero because, "He drives change and wants to make the world a better place." Chloe Baker's (Class of 2018) modern day hero is Lady Gaga because, "She sings Bad Romance and that's my favorite song."

As you can see, everybody has different heroes because everybody is different. People value all sorts of things and figuring out those things helps us to know who we are. It's important to recognize the people you look up to because from there, you get to decide what kind of person you'll be. Your hero or role model can change over time and it's fun to recognize who your hero used to be and who they are now.
